PYCON 2023

· CODE OF CONDUCT ·

PyCon Colombia is a conference organized by the Python Colombia community created for the dissemination of the Python programming language in our country and Latin America, with the objective of sharing knowledge and expanding the spaces for interaction and collaboration of its members. We value the participation of each member of the community and we want each participant in the conference to enjoy and gain valuable experience full of knowledge and innovation. According to this code, all participants including organizers, speakers, volunteers and attendees are expected to show respect and courtesy among themselves in all aspects of the conference, its organization and the events taking place in the context of the conference. To be more explicit than is expected of any person participating in the event and the global and local community of Python and Pycon Colombia are required to comply with the following Code of Conduct. The organizers of this event and any event in the future

Code of Conduct Content

PyCon Colombia is dedicated to providing a conference free of harassment for all members, regardless of gender, sexual orientation, physical abilities, physical appearance, race or religion. No abuse will be tolerated by any conference participant. All communications should be focused on a professional audience including people with different backgrounds and experiences. Sexual language is not appropriate for any event organized under our rules, including talks.

Our goal as a community recommends:

- Be kind to other members.
- Do not insult or demean the other participants.
- Behave professionally.
- Remember that any conduct of harassment, sexism, racism or political division or of any instance, is not appropriate for participation within the conference or community
- Not attending the conference under the influence of alcoholic beverages.
- Participants of our community of any type (Organizers, Speakers, Volunteers and Assistants) who do not comply with any of these
